What is a pediatrician?

Pediatrics is the medical specialty dedicated to the physical, mental, social and emotional health of children from birth thru adolescence. Pediatricians provide preventive health maintenance for healthy children and medical care for children who are acutely or chronically ill. Pediatricians complete an additional 4 years of medical school after obtaining their college degrees. This is followed by 3 years of a pediatric residency in an accredited hospital based residency program rotating through multiple subspecialty departments such as ICU, orthopedics, neurology and oncology. All Windhaven pediatricians are board certified and have had the honor of serving as THR Plano Hospital Pediatric Department Chairmen. In addition, the doctors are proud to have been named multiple times Texas Monthly & D Magazine's Best.
